Dear Sir,

My name is David English and I am writing you today to urge the FCC to save PBS. PBS has been an asset in terms of providing educational materials to both the young and the old for decades. The breadth and depth of the shows on PBS provide a public service to Americans.

When I was growing up I watched Sesame Street and The Electric Company. Today I enjoy documentaries and other programs which are more geared to adults. I believe it is important for people of all ages to have educational material available through PBS.

I strongly urge the FCC to save PBS. Our nation is counting on having this great network for decades more to come.

Thank you for your time!

Sincerely,

David A. English, MBA
